

Anyone But Me

by Sandy Gemmill

If I knew that being the new girl, would leave me lonely in the corner of ridicule,
You know I would have, if I could have, never walked the halls of this school.

Text by text and friend by friend...

I try, and I try, to be who they want me to be, but it seems, I can't be Anyone But Me

I waited for you at the mall downtown, my mistake to take you seriously.
At my regret, one more text, LMAO, another joke's on me.

Text by text and friend by friend...

And I try, and I try, to be who they want me to be, but it seems, I can't be Anyone But Me
And I try, and I try, to be who they want me to be, but it seems, I can't be Anyone But Me

Pushed around on the schoolyard ground, my heart stays in the dust.
Called me names, I won't complain...but I don't know who to trust.
Can I be? Can I be? Anyone But Me

And I try, and I try, to be who they want me to be, but it seems, I can't be Anyone But Me
And I try, and I try, to be who they want me to be, but it seems, I can't be Anyone But Me
